

FACING POVERTY, 'PEGGY' SUES FOR $100,000 AT ONCE

Former Mrs. Hopkins Also Demands $50,000 to Pay Mortgage.

CHICAGO, May 17.—Peggy Hopkins Joyce launched her third offensive in twenty-four hours against her millionaire husband, Stanley Joyce, when, through her attorneys, McCormick, Kirkland, Patterson & Fleming, she today filed a petition before Judge Sabath asking for temporary alimony and lawyers' fees.

She asks $10,000 a month for temporary alimony, $50,000 for her lawyers, $50,000 to finance her suit, and $5,000 to meet a note, past due, on the mortgage on her Miami (Florida) residence.

Increased Her Living Cost.
"Peggy" sets forth in her petition that $10,000 a month is the least that she can scrape along on. She declares that before meeting her husband in June, 1919, she was accustomed to living within her income, which she earned pursuing her stage career. But after meeting him, Joyce insisted that she give up her profession and mold her life according to the standards of his family.

Soon after their meeting, and months before their marriage, the millionaire lumber king insisted upon supporting "Peggy," and according to the bill, he "gave her an average of $10,000 a month" in addition to paying a large portion of her living expenses, and making her many and costly gifts.

This was an admission by "Peggy" that she was being supported by Joyce prior to her marriage to him and when she was still Mrs. Philip Hopkins.

Scale Goes Even Higher.
After their marriage, so the petition sets forth, Joyce introduced his wife to an even more elaborate scale of living. The home at Miami, which he purchased for $250,000 and presented to her on the six weeks' anniversary of their marriage, cost $1,000 a week to maintain. In addition, there was the cost of keeping the ten servants employed there, and of maintaining several automobiles.

"Peggy" insists that her husband encouraged her to spend from $9,000 to $10,000 a month on her clothes, and that from the time of her marriage, in January, until August, when he returned to the United States, he gave her $75,000 in cash, in addition to paying her various bills and giving her many gorgeous presents.

Poverty Knocks at Door.
"Peggy" says that she is within two weeks of poverty. She has no income; and her only property is clothes, jewelry, household furnishings, and a small sum of money. The money will "be gone at the end of the month." If no relief is forthcoming then, she must sell her personal belongings, which would have to go at a sacrifice, or borrow on them, which she cannot repay.

"Peggy" further contends that before their marriage Joyce told her that he intended to settle "a cool $1,000,000" upon her, so that the income from it might assist to maintain her in the mode of living to which she had become accustomed.

"She told him," so the bill reads, "that she did not care anything about the million, and only wanted him to cease drinking."

given by various members of the small colony of teachers and students of music that have come to regard the studios as a congenial and convenient meeting place.

The exhibit consists of about thirty water-color sketches and perhaps seventy pieces of china. Washington offers many enchanting subjects for the artist, few of which have been well interpreted, or even utilized as yet. Mrs. Hotchkiss has chosen her subjects almost exclusively from Washington, the sketching which she has especially liked is the painting of St. Matthew's Cathedral in a snowstorm. Several sketches are bits of Potomac Park during blossom time; others are landscapes of the Potomac River, along the old canal, or in Rock Creek Park. There are sketches of the White House, the Washington monument, and other popular subjects.

The work of the pupils of the Hotchkiss Studios is also very interesting. That of little Laura Schuyler, 11 Mason, of the Elizabeth Beal, 12, show surprisingly good technique.

MISS ADAMS BECOMES BRIDE OF MAJ. KING.

Miss Marie Holtzman Adams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Byron S. Adams became the bride of Maj. J. Craig King, U. S. A., yesterday afternoon.

The ceremony was performed at 5 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, presence of a small company of intimate friends and was followed by a large reception to which additional guests were invited. The Rev. P. C. Gavin, rector of the Sacred Heart Church, officiated and was assisted by the Rev. John F. Eckenrode and the Rev. P. A. Winter. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

Palms and ferns with quantities of roses and anubras were used as decorations throughout the house, and pink was the prevailing color in the drawing room, where the service was read.

The bride was attended by Mrs. Henry Martin Jensen, a matron of honor, wore a wedding gown of white satin made over a flounced petticoat of point applique which had been in the family for several generations. The waist was made long, the lace being used as a berth and to form the sleeves. The long court train of the satin fell from the shoulders.

The matron of honor wore a dainty frock of pink tulle and silver lace, finished with a deep sash of blue ribbon which formed the train. She wore a picture hat of pink horse hair braid and carried an armful of pink roses tied with blue ribbon.

Capt. Walter D. Vail, U. S. A., acted as best man for Maj. King, and Burtan Miller, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Perry Miller, held the ribbons to form an aisle through the drawing room.

Maj. King and his bride left at once for a wedding trip, the bride wearing a traveling costume of dark blue Canton crepe with a smart red taffeta hat and sable fur. On June 1 they will go to Carlisle, Pa., Maj. King having been ordered to temporary duty at the school of instruction.

Frisco Society Women Victims To Lure of Craps

CHICAGO, May 17.—It isn't Stanley E. Bailey's record as a distributor of doubtful checks that interests the San Francisco police. Detectives are on their way from the Pacific Coast today to take Bailey back to the Golden Gate, where he may be required to explain his tricks of penmanship. But that is only incidental.

Dispatches from San Francisco indicate that Bailey's greatest crime was this: "He taught San Francisco's society women how to shoot craps, but not how to shoot them as well as he did."

Several prominent women are said to have attended his classes at the Hotel Delmonico, where they spent thousands of dollars in a scientific investigation of the law of averages.

Bailey will be asked, also, about the disappearance of an $8,000 automobile, property of one of the fashionable and enthusiastic craps-shooters, and concerning the failure of five Craps tables to honor a number of checks left to meet hotel bills.

Bailey, in his cell, scoffed at the suggestion that he had acted as mentor to the society women of California in matters of seven and eleven, and such like.

James also will assist Mrs. Robert M. Thompson with the lemonade table.

The special amusements, arranged for the children, will be in charge of Mrs. Thomas Armat. Mrs. Van Dusen will have charge of the fishpond, where joys all the children know; and the "Bolehevik," a target, will be in charge of Mrs. Armat. Her assistants will be Mrs. Weston Chamberlain and Miss Mildred Green.

Mrs. Armat has asked to help her set for the boys to throw balls.

Mr. Reeve Lewis, Mrs. Bradford Chynoweth, Miss Sarah T. Watson, Mrs. F. B. Wiley, Mrs. James Glennon and several young girls. The latter will be interpreted by a mysterious crystal gazer.

Capt. Charles Harlan has charge of all finances.

R., be requested to have the "printing proceeding the names of the chapters be given in the credentials committee report."

Two hundred copies of the year book of 1920 were ordered printed. Mrs. Jason Waterman, chairman of the chapter house committee, presented the State executive with a handsome bound memory book.
